son's Belle-Lovely Women. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] GREENBRIER WRITE SULPRUR, June 27 .pleasures will soon be at their height at this delightful resort, for as the season begins so early so surely will it be sful. Viewing the large company dready assembled it is difficult to realize that it is as yet only June. There is no lack of entertainment, but it is of a sensible and simple nature. This is essentially a natural period of the season, par tially a natural period of the season, par example the young ladies are now gather-ing for themselves in the Caldwell gardens the reses and lilles they wear as a bouquet de corsage, for the florist or the crowds of young men to send flowers are not yet in evidence. The cand arrives next week and July the Fourth will formally usher in the season with a display of patriotic festivity. There will be an elegant banquet and in the evening a ball. Mrs. ex-Governor John C. Brown, John C. Brown, Jr., and Miss Brown, of Nashville, Tenn., are guests of prominence who will remain through the season.

through the season.

The Editorial Association of New Jersey, numbering two hundred, arrived on Tuesday, and in the evesting a ball was given in their bonor, which proved a most charming effair. F. W. Baldwin, of Orange, New Jorsey, is president, and Charles Bechtel secretary. The Kacutive Committee is composed of Messra. A. Vance, Shunickson Chew, E. D. Stokes, Levis D. Hyer, and James S. Yard. Although the title of New Jersey is applied to the association, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New York are ably represented. Many prominent editors are in attendance with their families. The personnel of the party is highly interesting. A. A. Vance, of the Executive Committee, is editor of the Morristown Jerseyman, and is one of the best-known and ablest writers in the State. Morristown is one of the most enthusiastically pariotic cities in the Union, and Jealousy preserves all its historical associations and relies. To its honor it preserves the headquarters of the Immortal Virginian, George Washington, with all its numerous Jurushings. The lodge-room of the Freezmasons also contains valuable relies of the Revolution of the Freezmasons also contains valuable relies of the Revolutive Committee, editor and owner of the Executive Committee, editor and owner of the Executive Committee, is accompanied by his wife and two daughtors. His paper was centallished in 1775, and is one of the oldest and brightest in the State.

Mrs. James S. Yard and son, of Freehold, N. J., have a brilliant company from that historic town. Colonel Yard is a veteran editor. He edits two newspapers—one, The True American, and firmly believes that Cleveland will succeed Harrison to the presidency. He will have, he says, the solid backing of New Jersey. Mrs. Yard is a noble woman of the truest type. She is tall and very distinguished in appearance, and possesses a deeply intellectual mind. She thinks the true aristocracy is to be found among the litterateurs. The members of the association are greatly charmed with the White Sulphur and everything that is typically southern. The meching-birds especially delight them. Their train was stopped at Jerry's Run to view the spot where a prominent gentleman of New Jersey was killed in 1861 on his way home from the White Sulphur, where he had made arrangements to return with his family for the summer. OTHER LITTERATEURS.

Other prominent gentlemen acompanying the association are Presecutor-of-the-Fleas E. F. Budd, of Mt. Holly; Assemblyman John R. Harden, of Newark; George T. Wurts, of the Paterson Frees, W. S. Ayres, superintendent of Succession Mining Company; Senator H. D. Winton, of Ha-kensack. Also in the party are Mrs. Woodward, Miss Anna Vredenburg, sisters of ex-Judge Vredenburg, of Monmouth sounty, William Hosea Bailou, the novellist, author of the "Upper Ten" and "Riding on a Cyclone," both popular novels, is on his way to spend the season ovels, is on his way to spend the season

BOATING AND TENNIS.

Mr. R. L. Ward, of New York, has inaugurated beating on Howard's creek. He has his boat here and has planned some pleasant boating parties. Tennis is a favorite diversion. Miss Riggs, of Washington, in addition to her fine talent of portrait-painting, is a devotee of tennis and probably one of the linest players in America. She has taken several prizes at promisers.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry May, of Washington, are guests of prominence, who occupy an attractive cottage. Mrs. A. B. Camm has arrived to spend the sea son. She will be joined soon by her daughters who were very popular last season, also by Mis Elien Lee and Miss Gildersleeve, of Baltimore. ARRIVED AND ARRIVING.

Mrs. J. W. Reinhart and family, of Boston, will arrive early in the week to spend the acasen. They bring their carriages and horses.
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Harris and their three charming young daughters are warmly welcomed. They occupy a cottage in Tensas Row and will remain till July 21st, when they go to the Sweet Chalybeate, returning to the White for Scottember.

September.
Mr. and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun, of the Corean Legation, will spend July at the White.
Mr. H. Frayser, the pepular and prominent official of the Chesapeake and Ohio, has arrived with his family to spend the season. They occupy a cottage in Florida Row.

twice been elected Governor and stands a strong chance of being the Democratic nominee for President, will spend the season at White Sul-President, will spend the season at White Sulpbur.

The Baltimore Glee Club entertained the Editorial Association with plantation songs and melodies on Thursday evening.

L. B. Jackson, of Chicago, who is so prominently connected with the Chesapeake and Ohio, spent several days at the White last week. He returns in July and will remain through the season. Mr. Jackson is extremely popular.

Don Horacio and Madam Guman, the Nicaragua Minister, will be here later in the season.

Rev. John S. Gibson, of Fredericksburg, will officiate at St. Thomas church Sunday.

Prominent arrivals are: Raiph Elliott and family, Savannah, Ga.; E. J. Gresham, E. G. Pendleton, Washington; G. W. Warren, Boston; Harry Langhorn, John Augustine, and E. W. Scott, Jr., Richmond, Va.; F.W. Griffin and wife, New York; Charles Bolton, Cincinnati, Ohio.

NEW SITE FOR ROANOKE COLLEGE.

Present Location Likely to Be Sold and New Ground Purchased. respondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

Salem, Va., June 26.—One of the results of the growth of Salem is likely to be the selection of a new site for Roanoke College. The present site of nearly twenty acres at the head of College avenue has become very valuable, and as a larger and better site can be secured on advantageous terms the question of making this important change is being seriously considered.
At the recent annual meeting of the trustees an outlook committee was appointed as follows:
President J. D. Dreber, chalirman: Captain S.
F. Simmons, Dr. S. C. Wells, T. J. Shickel, and J.
R. C. Brown, Sr.

LOOK CUT FOR SITES.

LOOK OUT YOR SITES. This committee was authorized to look out for sites and receive offers of land. In the last few days these gentlemen have been driving around and viewing several of the beautiful hills overlooking the town, and whilst no decision has yet been made it is understood that a tract of about fifty acres on adjacent lands a meets with favor as a suitable location. Roanoke College is the great Lutheran institution of learning in the South, and has sent out hundreds of young men who have distinguished themselves in the professions.

cases too faulty to stand the test in the Court of George escaped this week and came home to see his parents, who reside here, and was arrested by our police. When arrested he said that he only wanted to come home to see his family, and was willing now to return. He is quite a small boy, but has made a reputation here for crookedness. His case is a said one.
